

The Mighty Mustang

Although most think that the Ford Mustang was named after the horse, the designers at Ford were really thinking about the WWII P51 Mustang fighter, the best fighter during the war. Most Ford Mustang owners would relish the chance to have a photo of their ride taken next to this classic warbird. Thanks to Dan Kelly, several of our members got a last minute chance to have our Mustangs photographed with a P51 at the Creve Coeur Airport. This plane was somewhat unusual as it was a two-seater used for reconnaissance and training near the end of the war. The P51 and the bombers at the airport were owned by Collings Foundation. Thanks Dan!
